From The President's desk

Sitting at my PC and realising that we are almost at the end of our anniversary year and wondering where the past 12 months has gone.

What a busy year we have had and what support from you the members to all the events we have put on to celebrate our 50 years. If I started to thank individuals I will be here for a week. I am unsure how much the Anniversary car badges made to attendances or if it was the excellent way the events team put events together or if it was just relief of being a little freer of Covid perhaps a combination of all the above.

I think I can safely say that this past year has seen the most cars out on runs and the most members attending events, I have to say I am one very proud President, and I would like to thank each and everyone of you for your contribution over the past year. I also should make mention of the workshop crew who have helped to get more cars to events by providing mechanical support which in turn gave many members confidence to get their cars out.

The three events that I really found inspiring was the book launch, we now have an accurate record of our clubs first 50 years, I really must thank Loris Cooper for her excellent work compiling this book and to all the members who contributed, the second was the Gala Dinner great planning from Loris's team ably supported by Sylvanna. Who can forget the fashion show for which the main player was Cheryl Glew and a host of ladies and gentlemen who made up the fashion parade, the spin off from this was the production of the 2023 calendar a big thank you to Sian Ferris again Cheryl Glew for the professional calendar that was produced and almost sold out, the third event that sticks in my mind was the run to York which was a re-enactment of the very first run the club had. It was suggested that my ambition to have 50 cars for our 50th anniversary was unlikely to happen, you will not get 50 cars I was told, well not only did we get 50 cars we smashed it with 58 cars in total albeit two had to retire due to mechanical issues and a belated apology Willie Siroen as his car missed out on getting a photo taken.

The committee have decided that we will continue the attendance competition next year but the reward for attendee's is yet to be worked out. We will need someone to collate the attendance record though so if you feel like taking on a small role and can use a spreadsheet, please let me know.

I am hoping that by the time you read this the Toyota Camry will have been painted and, on the way, to being put together. The committee have decided that the car will be sold once completed. We will most likely have silent auction but with a reserve as we have already had one offer.

I would like to thank all those members who went to the funeral of our Cynthia Payne it was a very moving ceremony, many of us went to Cynthia's house for wake. We have also lost another member, Jim Doherty has passed away, he was the owner of the green 1926 Dodge that we worked on recently. The car was needed for his grand daughters wedding which he did achieve.

In signing off all I need to do is to say again thank you all for the support this year it has been fantastic. Have a safe and happy Christmas I look forward to doing it all again in 2023.

Kind Regards

Tony Warner

In Memory of my father who loved only his wife more than he loved the Willys 77 he owned as a young man. Though he owned and loved the Willys 77, he told me that the 1939 was the model that all the young men of his era lusted after and he considered it to be the ultimate in automotive style. Obviously shared by a lot of people because the models were very popular for hot-rodders and especially to make Gassers

Willies bodies were assembled in many countries, in Australia by Holden Motor Builders primarily except for one year. Because of this, the Holden had more freedom in the body design and released more models and different designs than the US. For this reason in the US currently, Holden Body Built Willys cars are worth more than the local cars and are in high demand. There is a steady export stream of local Willys cars to the US making them rarer here.

Spot Quiz

Elephant Stamp to the first person who can answer the following. (I may even be able to sort out something more substantial).

- On external appearance only, how would you tell the difference between a US body Willys sedan and a Holden body. (without looking at the body tags)
- What was the year that Holden did not assembled Willys and why.
- Who assembled Willys instead for that year and how do you tell the difference
- What the difference between this body and those of earlier and later models. (Again, without looking at the engine plates).
- This nose design, colloquially known as a "sharknose", who designed it and what was its proper name.

Good luck, if you cant answer all, answer what you can. Closest to the mark wins, judges decision final, bribes considered,( Beer, money and feme fatales all legal tender).

Let me know your answers.

50th ANNIVERSARY ROCKINGHAM RUN 20th NOVEMBER 2022

Another well attended run for the 50th Anniversary by members and friends, David a member from Belliar brought his Morris eight for its first ever run with the club.

It was a great get together over lunch, meeting new and old friends.

At 1.30 the car run began with some 20+ cars, of most makes and models.

This run was organised to showcase the coastal strip that Rockingham has to offer from the CBH Grain terminal that ships grain to all parts of the world, to the pristine beaches and waters of Rockingham and Palm Beach.

The convoy of cars passed Premier Mark McGowans house then thru the tourist restaurant and coffee strip then Palm Beach with the yachts moored on the crystal clear calm waters of mangles bay. Onwards to Point Peron which is classified as a marine park with its Sea lions, Dolphins, Penguins and Pelicans just a few of the marine life.

From Point Peron we drove thru the bush over where the RSL and other holiday camps are before reaching Shoalwater scenic drive, along this drive the sea is a lot rougher than Mangles bay but is ideal for all the wind surfers that we saw.

Known as Shoalwater islands marine park there is a ferry that goes to Penguin Island to see the fairy penguins, there is also a tour that goes to see the sea lions on the island.

On the return journey of the coastal drive a photo shoot of members and vehicles was arranged, special thanks to Gretar and Loris for their photography.

To finish it was a day that showcased what Rockingham has to offer but also showed the people and tourists of Rockingham the Vintage Automobile Association of W.A. in its 50th year

Many thanks

Mary and Brian had the BBQ ready along with tea & coffee. After lunch, we all climbed into our cars, and followed Brian & Mary, in their beautiful 1925 Hupmobile, and took a very scenic drive down to Point Peron and return trip back. Thank you so much to Brian and Mary Tucker for opening their beautiful home to us all...we look forward to a return trip in 2023.

Continuation of my interpretation of fashion history, 1950s. By Cheryl Glew

Work gains made during World War 2 proved temporary as women were dismissed from 'men's work' to make way for the returning servicemen.

Leaving behind the masculine responsibilities of the war years women were eager for luxury and fashionable things. Fashion prioritized elegance, and formality. Women made a special effort to dress appropriately for every occasion; it was considered imperative that accessories matched perfectly. Gloves and hats of course were part of every smart outfit. The right coat was a key element to pull together a polished look, it was vital the coat was just long enough to cover the garment underneath. With war time restrictions lifted, coats became luxurious, furs took off and were for many women the ultimate status symbol of the era. Lace production stopped during World War 2 and afterwards lace was sought after obsessively. The overall mood of the 50s was femininity and most women were back into traditional roles as wives, mothers, and homemakers. Glossy magazines advocated that woman should always look well-dressed, even when doing housework.

The overarching sentiment of the 50s was "New and Improved" this sentiment washed into not only fashion but every aspect of life. With the hard times of the depression and war behind them, the growing middle class of the 1950s started to live their lives in different ways. Prosperity brought the concept of leisure into the mainstream, as holidays and air travel became more affordable designers responded to the growing market with a new category of clothing. "Resort Wear", although it implied casual, people dressed it up, it was more colourful and revealing than everyday wear. Playsuits, beach dresses, bathing suits and cover-ups in vivid colours, including Hawaiian, Indonesian Batik, and animal prints. Cocktail parties were part of the changing world, this is when we see the emergence of the cocktail dress, worn with veiled cocktail hats and gloves. The formal mid-calf length dresses in luxurious fabrics were designed to wear between 5 and 8pm. There was also a trend for ballerina length wedding dresses, often made of or incorporating copious amounts of lace.

Christian Dior's "New Look", released in 1947, was an instant success, and the nipped-in waist and full-skirted silhouette remained popular for evening wear, day dresses, skirts, and tailored suits for the entire 1950s. Tailoring for women was one of the strongest trends, suits from the 40s were military inspired but they evolved in the 50s as designers explored tailoring techniques to create the idealised feminine form. Soft round shoulder line, tight fitting bodice to shape a small waist before flaring out to accentuate the hips. Skirts hit mid-calf and were either full or pencil thin. After the war male designers dominated the fashion industry. Coco Chanel was convinced women would rebel against the "illogical" silhouette male designers favoured. She believed the cinched in waist, padded bra, fitted pencil and full, heavy skirts were uncomfortable, impractical, and manipulated women to strive for an un-natural form. At the age of 70 she came out of retirement releasing her 1st collection in 15 years. Her famous words are still true today, "Simplicity is the keynote of all true elegance" her simple unstructured designs were in direct contrast to the popular hour-glass silhouette made popular by Christian Dior. Her 50s iconic tweed jacket is instantly recognised as "The Chanel Jacket" and has earned classic status. Vogue remaining loyal to Chanel, featured the new release and her style once again became popular.

Continuation of my interpretation of fashion history, 1950s

With more leisure time the craze for sportswear started by American designers in the 40s developed with wrap-over dresses, pedal-pushers, twinsets, trousers, poodle skirts, and sundresses. The idea of choice rather than following one specific style was new and women embraced the choice. No matter what women were wearing they still did their best to ensure they looked stylish.

After the war men were back in civilian clothes and wanted to indulge a little, clothing manufactures adapted to the new mood, experimenting with their designs. With the restrictions of war lifted, American suit makers offered a softer more casual suit style with double breasted jackets, and full pleated trousers, with a turned-up cuff. Business suits with a softer, slimmer jacket and slightly tapered trouser were predominantly worn for work, usually single breasted but more mature businessmen preferred a slim double-breasted style. London gentlemen retained their formal business dress code of dark 3-piece suit and bowler hat. British Savile Row launched suits in expensive luxury fabrics, shoulders followed a more natural line, rather than being padded and jackets were cut for a slimmer fit. Italian menswear makers pioneered light weight suiting in fine fabric such as silk, offering a balance between casual and polish. Tuxedos and dinner suits, 1st worn in the 1800s, were very much in vogue during the 1950s as formal wear for most evening occasions. Hats, most popular the Fedora, were a key accessory, not until the mid-50s was it acceptable for men to go bareheaded. Moving through 1950s men's wear started to relax and become more casual no longer wearing business suits outside of the office, sports coats and blazers were the casual alternative. Traditionally young boys wore shorts and graduated to trousers around puberty, but with many soldiers serving in tropical locations during WW2, the idea of adult males wearing shorts for leisure started to germinate. We see tailored shorts for the 1st time, although the perception of shorts as being only for young boys took several decades to change.

Hawaii had been an important Naval base during WW2, and it was a training ground for 50,000 marines. Returning service men brought home the Hawaiian Aloha Shirt. As affluence improved and the hard-working men were able to spend more time with their families, Hawaii became a favourite holiday destination for many Americans. Aloha shirts became enormously popular and gained wider appeal when worn by Frank Sinatra and Clift Montgomery in "Here to Eternity", its bright, happy, tropical colours a stark contrast to the conformity of the everyday suit. With popularity growing it didn't take long for manufacturers to copy the colourful shirts and the Hawaiian shirt was born. Today fast fashion has taken on the trend and every summer we see rakes of Hawaiian shirts in most discount stores.

Throughout history young people wore children's clothes until they were old enough to graduate into adult clothes. In the 1950s for the 1st time in we see teenage fashion. There were distinct roads teenage fashion took, there were the preppy good kids in modified versions of adult clothes, and the more interesting alternative kids. As the new generation looked for ways to assert their independence by dressing differently. Many youth style tribes developed amongst the post war youth including Bobby-soxers, Beats and Hipsters in the US, Teddy boys and girls, and Rockers in UK, Boddies, and Widgies in Australia.

Bad boy male style icon of universal rebellious leisurewear was Marlon Brando, his characters struck a chord with the new generation of young people feeding off the post war restlessness and escaping the polite conventions of 50s society. 1951 Marlon Brando introduce youth to the T-Shirt when he famously wore an undershirt on display in "Streetcar Named Desire" in 1953 he expanded on the uniform in "The Wild One" wearing a T-Shirt, jeans, and leather jacket. 2 years later in 1955 James Dean created a similar look with blue jeans, white T-shirt, and windcheater bomber jacket in "Rebel Without A Cause".

Continuation of my interpretation of fashion history, 1950s

The Marlon Brando's jacket and blue jeans proved to be so popular with teens the education departments in UK and America banned them from school grounds.

Such looks were rebellious not just because they were associated with working class or hoodlums, but because they were social levellers, these were styles worn by film stars that most young people could afford. Denim work-wear companies recognising a new market, targeted teens with new drainpipe jeans, so their hero's style was easy to copy and readily available. Together with Marlon Brando, James Dean, and Elvis Presly they ensured the rise of jeans, worn with the white t-shirt, leather or windcheater jacket and greased back hair.

To the Workshop Boys A BIG THANKS

We would like to thank the Guys in the workshop, who helped work on the Ford Fairlane 500.

We pushed hard to have the car cleaned, polished and running smooth, as a big surprise for Tony Jurkov 97th Birthday on November 6th

With the help of the boys in the workshop, the car was ready to take Dad on a scenic ride. We travelled around the foreshore of Applecross and Attadale then onto the Dome in Fremantle, where we stopped for afternoon tea. When he first saw the car, he recognised that it was a Fairlane, and he commented that "he once had one" He was surprised when we told him that it was his Fairlane. Tony has not driven the car for over 5 years. He has been in a nursing home for two years and this is the first time we were able to get the car up and running for him to enjoy.

We appreciate the knowledge and enthusiasm you Guys have shown us and we look forward to many more runs with the club.

The Department of Transport (DoT) is currently undertaking an audit of our club's status and concessional licensing records. This will ensure the VAA continues to meet the criteria for a DoT Approved Motoring Club and able to offer concessional licensing as well as members eligibility for a concessional vehicle licence. Now routine, it is positive and helps ensure our club records are accurate.

The VAA records are in good shape however with nearly 300 members and over 500 vehicles involved, it is inevitable that errors will occur. Any discrepancies are likely to be caused by a simple error, the club details not matching those on the registration papers or members not proceeding to concessional license once the documents are issued.

Should you have any queries from DoT with regards to the audit of the concessional license on your vehicle, please ring me on 0419 998 589 if I can help.

Concessional Licensing Update

Veteran, Vintage, Post Vintage & Invitation Class Scheme (Code 404)

The Council of Motoring Clubs (CMC) technical committee has successfully worked with the Department of Transport (DoT) to review and update Veteran, Vintage, Post Vintage & Invitation Class Scheme (Code 404) handbook. It provides detailed information on the operation and requirements of the Code 404 scheme.

Through the hard work of the technical committee the generous scheme is largely intact. However there have been numerous detailed clarifications that impact over 200 members and 500 vehicles.

IMPORTANT – Any member with a vehicle concessionally licensed under code 404, please take time to review and understand the revised requirements of the scheme <https://councilofmotoringclubswa.wildapricot.org/code404-scheme> .

In summary:

The objectives of the Code 404 scheme are:

- to encourage the restoration and preservation of historic vehicles, being vehicles no less than 25 years old; and
- to maintain the manufacturer's original specification of historic vehicles.

The key principle is that: the vehicle is not used for general transport or commuting, with use of the vehicle being restricted to:

- any recorded event organised by an approved motoring Club;
- an impromptu event/run involving one or more vehicles over a one-day period which is recorded in the approved Club's 'Run Log';
- rallies organised by approved historic motoring clubs;
- closed road processions;
- being exhibited in displays, fetes and similar functions for religious, charitable or educational purposes;
- ceremonial purposes involving immediate family members, subject to Club approval and recording;
- preparing for, proceeding to, and returning from these activities;
- travel to have the vehicle repaired; and
- road testing within a 30km radius of the place of garaging or repair.

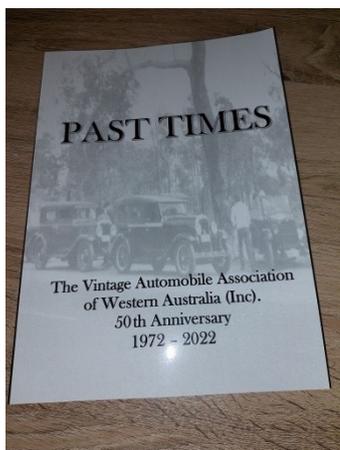

Owners of vehicles licensed under Code 404 are solely responsible for:

- maintaining their vehicle in its original specification (i.e. unmodified)
- remaining a financial member of a Department of Transport (DoT) approved motoring club to be eligible for the concession;
- adhering to the terms and conditions of vehicle use; and
- ensuring that the specified plate identifier/s are attached to the vehicle.
